

Ritual

examine ritual in your life and the lives of others then

create ten objects designed for ritual use, keeping in mind that rituals can be commonplace - like eating, preparing yourself for day, smoking (that's very bad for you by the way), etc. etc.

investigate the reasons why we attach such significance to ritual objects . . .

How do they shape our identity?

How do they shape the space around them? And around us?

think of everyday sacred objects should something be sacred that is not?
